MAIN INJECT · 3:05 PM · PRINT 2 COPIES, ONE PER TEAM

URGENT. 3:05 PM. From Hal Brandt, Outside Counsel.

Calvin Teague has responded to the reporter and to us.

His public statement: "These claims are false and malicious. Brandywine has fed Delaware families with pride for 22 years. We will not be bullied by a reporter chasing clicks." He is at a local TV station now, calling the story "an attack on 60 hardworking families."

His letter to us, sent through his attorney, states that if the group pulls, returns or publicly disparages Brandywine product he will: (1) file a defamation suit against Bleu Hen Hospitality Group, and (2) pursue breach-of-contract damages under Sections 12 and 14 of our supply agreement.

The letter names no figure.

My read: I can't tell you whether the journalist is right. You have no independent proof. If you say anything public that sounds like an accusation, you may hand him his lawsuit. If you say nothing and the story is true, you are serving your guests something you promised you weren't.

The article still publishes at 5:00 PM. Decide.
